URGENT URGENT URGENT URGENT

We are in need of a Chairperson or co-Chairperson for the 1990 AARC Hamfest/Flea Market. A major portion of the work has already been done. Please consider this job or we may be hung out to dry. If you have organized something like this before or would like to try, please contact Eric Stewart-345-6575; Ed Bosco-345-4530 as soon as possible. WE NEED HELP ! ! !

AARL GENERAL MEMBERSHIP MEETING
JULY 6, 1990

At or around 7:10pm the meeting was shoed to order by our famous Vicepresident Cathy KL7NR. (You see Ed had taken the gavel so in order to be heard over the noise of the overflow crowd Cathy had to resort to pounding the table with her shoe. Thus the term, the meeting was shoed to order. Sigh)

Yes, you guessed it. No duly elected secretary being present it was forced upon me, your lowly former dedicated secretary, Dan AL7GN, to once again assume the power of the press and act like a secretary. I do not do windows nor make coffee however. (The pay is not good enough for that).

Following a lengthy round of introductions of all members and guests and stray bodies the meeting quickly swung into high gear.

It was moved, seconded and passed to increase the Club annual scholarship contribution from $1200 to $2400.

In order to avoid having to perform her assigned duties as is fitting such an outstanding Vicepresident Cathy has successfully arranged to be TDY the last two weeks of August and first part of September. She therefore cannot act as the flea market chairperson. She did find a location to hold an affair, oops I mean the club flea market, on the east side as requested. The only cost is a piddling 10 cents per square foot, we clean up the place afterwards. Shucks folks that's only $1500 for a weekend of fun and frolic. Let's do it. However I was shouted down when attempting to so move so apparently we still need to find a place soon or we will be up the creek without a flea market nor a paddle.

The Field Day report was enthusiastically given as, Ed took the #0!***^+*x$@ log book so we don't know nothin. Sigh.

There being no further business before the club and in an attempt to wake Fred up from his evening snooze Cathy proceeded to climb onto the table and do a song and dance routine. It didn't help the meeting but Fred sure woke up. She refused to do cartwheels, however so two donuts were handed out to each member along with great and grand door prizes, of which I won two, Fred won two, Lance won two and Cathy won two.

There being no further club, funny or monkey business we all went home at 7:25pm. Yawn!!!! Yours as in the good old day, AL7GN

Tokyo Rose (Continued)

After circumstances forced her to remain in Japan, Toguri's first task was to find work to support herself. In July 1942 Toguri began work at the Domei News Agency translating English language news broadcasts into Japanese. During her interrogation following the war, Toguri recalled she made no comment on her translations nor did she know what use was made of them. In August 1943 Toguri also took a second job as a typist in a business office of Radio Tokyo. She was approached by a fellow employee in November who asked her to audition for a planned entertainment program which was to be directed at Allied soldiers in the Pacific. At this audition, she met Major Charles Hughes Cousens, an Australian captured at Singapore, and Major Wallace E. Ince, an American captured at Corregidor. Both men had prior radio experience and, after their capture, were ordered by the Japanese to work for Radio Tokyo. Cousens explained to Toguri the projected program was to consist of messages from POWs, recorded music, and news from the American home front. Toguri later told Army interrogators she initially accepted the position because she thought she could entertain American soldiers. She also stated she felt the request by Cousens and Ince were tantamount to direct orders which she should not refuse and she also feared action by the Japanese army and secret police if she did not continue to broadcast.

Toguri began her broadcasts in mid November 1943 with the programs entitled "ZERO HOUR" aired between 6:00 and 7:15 pm daily except Sunday. A typical program consisted of POW messages, music introduced by Toguri, American homefront news read by a male announcer, more music, then news commentary, etc. During December 1943, Cousins and Ince informed Toguri they were attempting to make the program as entertaining as possible rather than propaganda as the Japanese intended. Toguri also told interrogators she laughed when referring to herself as the enemy and tried not to sound sexy or appealing during the broadcasts to further subvert Japanese intentions.

The name 'Tokyo Rose' was never used by Toguri herself but was a name coined by American soldiers listening to the broadcasts in the Pacific. During the broadcast, Toguri was introduced as Orphan Ann, Orphan Annie, Your Favorite Enemy Ann, Your Favorite Playmate and Enemy Ann. Toguri was also not the only female announcer used by Radio Tokyo. As many as 6 other women introduced music and read POW messages on "Zero Hour" broadcasts.

Life in wartime Japan remained hard for Toguri. As "Tokyo Rose" she received no extra salary but was paid the same as other Radio Tokyo employees, about 130 yen per month. In December 1943, she resigned her job with the Domei News Agency and took another job as clerk typist for the Danish minister which earned her an extra 150 yen per month.

At this time, Toguri further complicated her life by marrying Felipe d'Aquino who was a Japanese-Portuguese with Portuguese citizenship. Following the marriage, the Portuguese Consul issued her a certificate of Portuguese citizenship, however she continued to register as an American with Japanese officials. Thus did Toguri d'Aquino live for almost 2 years in war time Japan.

In September 1945, General Douglas MacArthur's Tokyo Headquarters announced the impending arrest of American citizens suspected of treasonous activities during the war. Toguri d'Aquino was arrested on October 16, 1945 - more than 5 weeks after first being questioned. She was held in Yokohama Prison until November 16 before being transferred to Sugamo Prison near Tokyo where she would remain for almost a year. While in prison, Toguri d'Aquino was allowed one 20 minute visit per month from her husband, was forbidden counsel, and was allowed no correspondence. Between October 1945 and April 1946, Toguri d'Aquino was continually interrogated by army intelligence officers with substantial corroboration of her story from other individuals. Of no little significance were statements by both Cousins and Ince who stated they had been ordered to work for Radio Tokyo by the Japanese, the Japanese Army had ultimate command of the radio station, and they had enlisted Toguri d'Aquino largely to undermine the effectiveness of the propaganda broadcasts. Her lack of broadcast experience, her masculine and aggressive voice precluded any possibility of creating a home sick feeling which the Japanese were attempting to foster. Cousins and Ince also both testified that Toguri d'Aquino had smuggled gifts, food, and truthful war news to American POWs which she gathered from her husband who was still employed at the Domei News Agency. Perhaps the single most important reason Toguri d'Aquino was eventually singled out for prosecution was that Cousins and Ince kept her alone informed of their plans to subvert the Japanese broadcasts, thereby raising the antagonism of other Radio Tokyo employees. Even the Foreign Broadcast Division of the FCC, who monitored Radio Tokyo Broadcasts during the war, determined that despite widespread rumor and legend of the charming "Tokyo Rose" who had access to American military plans, the name had been coined by American service men in the Pacific and referred to several different women on other programs.
